MAYOR McGUP By John Jarvis

ALBANY - WATERFORD

— Lillian L. Brown, Corres. —

Under the law passed at the last legislative session residents are required to have fishing and hunting licenses at the age of 16 instead of 18. Residents may not hunt alone until they are 16 years of age. They may hunt without licenses with parents or guardian or any adult approved by parent or guardian between the ages of 10 and 16. There is nothing in the law to prevent any boy under 16 from purchasing a license but the license does not entitle him to hunt alone.

THE CITIZEN OFFICE

Thursday, September 17

As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day. (Ezekiel 34:12.) Read Ezekiel 34:12 or Romans 13:11-14.

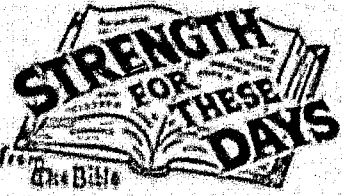

PEOPLE are often troubled in spirit when they go to church. They are all the week round buffeted by the world. They are weary in body and sick in soul. They come to worship God, to find solace and health in His presence. It is good that by listening to the words of the preacher and joining in the hymns and prayers, the worshippers forget for one short hour the world with its pickering and troubles.

And if sometimes the words of the sermon probe the deep wounds of their hearts, or the thunder of Sinai make the sinner tremble and be afraid, that also is good. The main thing is that the divine Voice be audible through and within the human voice or instrument. Then the preacher is a prophet, and the Church is doing its task of priesthood in bringing God near to men and men near to God.

Prayer
Lord of life, Thou Shepherd of the sheep, Thou art faithful in Thy desire and tireless in Thy efforts to bring us into the fold of Thy blessedness. Help us to hear Thy voice and cry out for deliverance from evil. Speak to our hearts through Thy Church. Keep us faithful. In the Shepherd's name. Amen.

Thought For The Day
The Church brings God near to us, and us near to God.
—Y. S. Kassouny (Lebanon)

We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. (Romans 15:1.)

It is one thing for a man to be confidently strong in his faith; but it is quite another if, in his strength, he becomes snug and unsympathetic, unmoved and unchanging. He is not truly a good Christian if he fails to help those less fortunate than himself—for their sake, not his—every opportunity.

GOULD ACADEMY

Nearly 100 parents of freshman boys and girls, faculty members, trustees and wives enjoyed a get-together in Hanson Hall on Thursday evening, September 10.

Headmaster Elwood F. Ireland gave a brief history of the development of Gould Academy, tracing the various steps from the Bethel High School of 1835 to the present time. This was followed by a detailed outline of the various courses and activity offerings of the Academy and an explanation of the new activity fee with its many advantages. The Headmaster invited community groups to share the facilities of the Academy when holding meetings or conducting activities with which the school can be of assistance. The noon lunch program to which all day students will be invited at some time during the school year was also outlined.

Coffee and cookies were served by Mrs. Libbie Kneeland, President of the Alumni Association and Mrs. Estelle Goggin, Gehring Hall Matron, with Miss Mary Whitney and Miss Verna Swift assisting. Tours of the campus conducted by members of the Student Council concluded the evening activities. Plans are now in progress for the Parents Day Program on Saturday, October 10.

DR. SMITH ADDRESSES GOULD STUDENTS

Dr. Payson Smith, former Commissioner of Education for Maine and Massachusetts, addressed the students of Gould Academy on Wednesday morning on the subject of "Success and Failure." Dr. Smith stated that there is no such thing as absolute failure or absolute success but that there are gradations of each. What is sometimes regarded as a failure, Dr. Smith added, serves to spur individuals on to greater achievement. He emphasized that education is not derived primarily from an institution and a faculty. These offer facilities but education must be gained by the individual himself. In the early years in school, teaching takes on a more important aspect, but as a student goes on through school, he must assume more and more responsibility and realize that the business of learning belongs to himself.

Dr. Smith pointed out that all great achievers, discoverers, philosophers, explorers, etc., are those people who have mastered the ability to learn by themselves. Dr. Smith closed by emphasizing that there are no limitations to what one may do or be. There is no one who does not have some potentiality or latent ability. Achievement is gained largely on the knowledge of what you are and a desire to do something about it.

Kenneth Gray, State Warden of Inland Fisheries and Game, will address the student body on Wednesday, September 23 on the subject of safety at 1:00 p. m. in Hanson Hall. All members of the community interested in hearing

Things are looking a little different now than they did a short while ago. Some of the populace contend that cold weather has set in for sure but I will go along by myself and predict that we are to get some more warm weather yet. Of course if this prediction goes wrong, I can always blame government intervention for it.

Joe Ramsey will present an all color motion picture story of the fantastic Okefenokee Swamp, a geological wonder of the South. Mr. Ramsey has traveled throughout the wild and most unexplored regions of the United States, has studied and photographed wildlife in every state of the union except three and throughout Mexico and Canada. In shooting the film which he titles "Land of Trembling Earth," he obtained amazing photographs of bear, otter, raccoon, American eagle, whooping crane, snowy egret, and many other animals and birds in their native habitat. He is credited with having taken on some of the most spectacular wildlife pictures ever filmed—and is a recognized authority in the field in North America. His lecture with the film is most enjoyable because of the sparkling commentary and humor which he injects. The public is cordially invited to attend.

NEW RADIO SERIES

ON HOW PRAYER HEALS

A new series of weekly 15-minute radio programs illustrating the power of prayer in everyday life will be released Sept. 19 by the Christian Science church.

Each program presents a first-hand, documentary narrative in which a guest tells of his own religious experience—how his problem was solved or how he experienced physical healing through prayer in Christian Science.

The thoroughly verified accounts are being tape recorded from persons of many different walks of life from all over the United States, Canada, Europe, Africa, Australia, and other parts of the world.

Following the narrative a short inspirational message will be presented on how the listener can solve his own problems through prayer.

The programs—carrying the series title "How Christian Science Heals"—are being produced by The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, according to announcement by John D. Pennell, Christian Science Committee on Publication for Maine.

They will be heard on about 600 radio stations throughout the United States, Canada and Australia, and at points in Latin America, Africa, Europe, and New Zealand.

The opening program presents a shipyard worker who tells how prayer brought his release from a fuel tank in which he was trapped.

Subsequent programs present a man healed of tuberculosis when he had been given a month to live; a man who was a confirmed alcoholic on the brink of suicide, restored to health and sobriety; a college student supplied with funds for tuition; a housewife healed of cancer; a businessman healed of disabling injuries in minutes following a serious automobile accident—all through the power of

CRESCENT PARK SCHOOL

NEWS

With the first week of school now completed, the organization of special school groups has been finished.

The students honored by the eighth grade with election as class officers are: Pres., Richard Grover; Vice-Pres., Richard Roberts; Sec., Richard Saunders; Treas., Ellen Lord; Finance Committee: Chairman Jane Kneeland, Roberta Heath, John Gunther. The committee has held its first meeting and is ready to suggest many interesting activities at the next class meeting on Friday.

The 7th and 8th grade student council has as its members: Grade 8 — Richard Grover, Ellen Lord; Grade 7 — Harriet Kneeland, Robert Dorsey. This group meets on Thursday afternoons. Items for immediate discussion are the school field day and the planning of the calendar of events for the year.

The school is again sponsoring a magazine campaign to raise funds for these activities. The student body wishes to thank the citizens of Bethel for their fine support in the past and hope that this present drive will prove to be the most successful of all. Last year over $1000 worth of magazines were sold, with the school making a profit of $325. The money raised this year will be used for the purchasing of another slide-film-strip projector, along with many new film strips. This machine has proved to be a valuable teaching device. With a second projector, greater and more effective use can be made of this visual aid.

The expenses involved in this year's social program and the replacement of certain expendable playground equipment are other areas of expense to be covered by this activity. Crescent Park School students certainly appreciate the continued cooperation of the Bethel people. Business manager of this activity is Richard Saunders, with Betty York and Ruth Willard as assistants.

BEAR RIVER GRANGE

Bear River Grange met at their hall Sept. 12 with a small attendance. Dances for the coming winter were mentioned. The H. & C. W. committee have donated cash enough so we are having our hall painted outside. Rolfe & Taylor are doing the work.

Our Worthy Master and family have returned from their western trip. Now Mr. Holt is very bad off with poison from the weeds and uncut hay, so they could not come to our meeting. We hope he will soon be much better.

Ideas were exchanged on the "how" of raising money to pay the dues of our boys in the service. The Worthy State Secretary, Nellie Haskell, was our invited speaker. As this was fire prevention meeting incidents were related by the members and visitors.

Officers missing were Master, Overseer, Steward, Assistant Steward, L. A. Steward, Lecturer, Chaplain and Flora.

Harvest Supper was mentioned as was the idea of painting the name of the Grange on the sides of the hall thinking the passersby would be more apt to see it.

Program was as follows: Song by all; Roll call, fire prevention; Talk of work done by our Worthy State Secretary Nellie Haskell. She called it a "dry talk" but it gave us insight of the work demanded by a State Grange Secretary that only a few knew about and proved very interesting; Accordion Music, Laura Yates; Piano numbers, Nellie Haskell; Closing Song, by all; Remarks by Mr. Haskell. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

This picture of watchful waiting has appeal whether you know the little girl at the station or not. In fact, the lack of exact knowledge of the situation leaves room for interesting speculation.

"If You Only Know the People . . ."

AT ONE time or another we've all found ourselves relating a story that seems interesting to us and, in the midst of it, suddenly realize that it isn't going over with our audience. Frequently we end up rather lamely with a comment to the effect that if your audience doesn't know the people involved, they won't be able to appreciate the story.

There, just as there are stories that are good in themselves, there are many of our snapshots that have appeal whether or not you know the people, are familiar with the scene, or were a part of the activity depicted.

It is this second type of picture you should consider when you think about entering one of the many snapshot contests that are open now. This universality of appeal is an absolute must when it comes to prize winning pictures. It goes without saying that any potential prize winner has to be a sharp, clear picture

But once that is established, the first thing you should ask yourself is whether or not you have to "know the people" for the picture to be of interest.

I'm intentionally writing as though I think that all of my readers are planning to enter snapshot contests because I think they should. Too many people regard such competitions as being only for the "advanced" amateur, with fine equipment and considerable skill. Some of them are. But there are many others which offer fine prizes that are just as likely to be won by someone using a box camera. Past prize winners prove this to be true.

If you think you'd like to try your hand at entering a contest where you might win some fine cash prizes, I'd suggest that you consult one of the amateur photographic magazines which are available at all newsstands. Most of these magazines have a column which lists current contests, and provides information on where to write for full details, etc.

By entering picture contests you'll have fun—whether you win or not. But remember, concentrate on pictures in which you don't have to "know the people."

—John Van Guilder

From the Catalina Mountains Star, Flagstaff, New York: The state of Georgia has reduced its voting age to 18 years, the first of the states to do so. President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon are strongly in favor of reducing the voting age. Chairman Leonard W. Hall of the Republican National Committee, reports.

Former or later all the states will have to make a decision on this issue. In favor of 18-year-olds voting is the argument that anyone old enough to fight is old enough to vote, and entitled to a voice in a national policy which may send him overseas to fight.

Also some feel that adding young voters to the rolls will bring to a peaceful and bloodless group who may neutralize to some extent the conservatism of the mature voter.

Take care to think out your stand on this issue, so that if and when it comes before you at some future election, you will know just where you stand.

From the Oconomowoc Enterprise, Oconomowoc, Wisconsin: A store is overstocked. It puts on a sale. It clears its shelves. It learns a lesson the hard way and becomes better for it.

An industry overproduces. It collectively or separately puts on mass drives to sell the surplus. This is frequently done in overproduction of perishable products.

Under government operation the surplus is taken off the market or destroyed at the cost of the taxpayers. There is no incentive for initiative. It's all done for government as against sound business practices of free enterprise.

One third, free enterprise, is the road to a future, the other, government control or ownership—no matter what the socialists say—is a dry rut.

ALBANY HUNT'S CORNER—AND VICINITY

—Mrs. Annie Bumpus, Corres.—

The Albany Congregational Church observed their one-hundred and fiftieth anniversary Sunday, September 13, 1953.

The guest preacher at the forenoon service was the Rev. Cornelius Clark, L. H. D., minister of the State Conference. Music was furnished by the Parish Young People's Choir.

A luncheon was served at noon and this included two anniversary cakes one of which was decorated with 150 candles.

In the afternoon the address of welcome was given by the church clerk, Mrs. Hazel Wardwell and a history of the church prepared and read by Roy Wardwell. Greetings from former ministers and friends were read by the Rev. W. I. Bull. Congratulations from the Union Association were extended by the Rev. Andrew Young and from the United Parish by Mrs. Marian Hopping. We were much pleased to welcome two of our former ministers, the Rev. B. F. Wentworth and the Rev. Earl Osborn, who had many interesting anecdotes to tell of their days in Albany. Fred Clark told of his memories of the old church at the time it was moved eighty years ago. The Rev. Hilda Ives, D. D., who was our minister during the summers of 1924 and 1925, was the guest preacher for the afternoon. Songs were rendered by Miss Athello Hall.

The offerings and special gifts totaled a little over $150.

Round Mountain Grange No. 162 met at their hall Monday evening, September 7, with 17 members present. It was voted to have the Grange exhibit at North Waterford Fair.

This was Gentlemen's Night and they prepared the following program: Readings, Brother Erwin Hutchinson; Solo and Encore, Sister Athello Hall; Reading, Sister Imogene Kimball; Piano Solo and Encore, Sister Hazel Wardwell; Readings, Sister Alta Meserve; Closing Song, "Smile, Smile, Smile." By All. Lunch was served by the men after the meeting.

Several from this vicinity have been picking corn at East Bethel. Recent callers at Marian Bumpus' were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pinkham and son, Monty; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Keniston and daughter, Lona; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lapham and son, Byron; Carlton Rugg, Rev. W. I. Bull, Mrs. Cora Bumpus and Mrs. Dorothy Merriam and daughters, Madeline, Margaret, and Marilyn, of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. John Spiny, and Charlie Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Temple from Wellsley, Mass., were recent overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Andrews.

Kelth Dyer is attending high school at Casco.

Earl Keniston and Arthur Edridge called at L. J. Andrews' Sunday.

Miss Ophelia Spring has returned home after spending the summer at her camp at Hunt's Corner.

AT LAST the gardening season is about over. And I can't say I'm sorry.

This year my wife started out with the idea of raising vegetables to eat and feed us all summer. Instead of the usual small plot to putter about in and enjoy.

In April I spaded ground until my back was almost broken. She, of course, stood on the sidelines and cheered me on when she wasn't screaming at me to break up this or that clod.

I must admit she helped me with the siring when I was ready to mark off the rows. After that I took over again. I finished planting in early May.

I had a little over a week of rest before the darn stuff started coming through the ground. With it came weeds. For the rest of May and June I hoed and hoed and hoed. In July we began to have a few things to eat from the garden, but I still hoed and hoed, even in my dreams.

Then, during the first of August the garden reached its peak of production. Everything was fine until one day out comes the wife with a floppy hat on her head, some kind of gardening outfit which I learned later set me back $3.95, gloves and a big basket.

"Why the rig?" says L.

"I'm going out to my garden to get a few vegetables," says she.

"Did you say MY garden?"

"Why yes, so I did," says she.

"Jumpin' catfish!" I yelled and started slapping at bean vines, tomato plants, cabbages, etc.

She fled in terror to the house shouting for grandmother to come and stop the slaughter.

They just can't understand why I should get so angry when she said MY garden. That's like a woman, isn't it?

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Margaret Formanek, La Crosse, Wisconsin: I remember when I was 14 years old and worked in a knitting factory for $1.50 a week. Later in a candy factory for $4.50 a week. The girls wore dresses and bloomers down to the ankles. We had long hair to our waist line, so we wore our hair up with hair rolls called "rats" and about 63 long hairpins to hold it in place. Our costumes consisted of sky-scraper hats, velvet high button shoes, long cotton stockings, long sleeve dresses with high neck lines, and capes to the ankle. In those days women did not smoke or dare go into a tavern.

From An Old Timer: I can remember when we did not have metal buckets and tubs. We used wooden washtubs and had to be careful that the staves did not warp. We also used a cedar churn and cedar buckets. We used wood as fuel.

From Mrs. Julia Shaw, Grandville, Michigan: I remember as a child seeing men to spear fishing at night. On the front of the boat they put an iron container on a pole. A fire was built in the container with pieces of pine to furnish light.

KILL POTATO TOPS, HANDLE SPUDS CAREFULLY, IS ADVICE

This year, more than ever, it's important for Maine potato growers to put the best possible quality spuds on the market at a price consumers are willing and able to pay. So says Paul Mosher, Extension Service crops specialist. He advises killing potato tops two or three weeks before digging, using extra care in running the digger and picking, and easing the tubers into storage with a minimum of rubbing and feathering. After all, they're your potatoes, so treat them with care, it pays.

THE ANDROSCOGGIN LAKES

the indolence of a long sail by steam, and the attractions of the forest are new with every step. Now the path touches a little clearing, where remain the "bean poles" of a deserted camp of "river-drivers," as the lumbermen are called; and now it draws for a moment near the stream at a point where a massive dam stems its current, and creates a roar of water which breaks pleasantly upon the prevailing stillness. Again it buries itself in the forest, away from every sight and sound of the work of man, where the startled rabbit darts almost under your feet to cover, and the affronted partridge whisks away into a more secure seclusion. The solitude is intense, and the half hour which the walk consumes too quickly passes.

Indian Rock, perhaps the best known locality in this lake country, is the traditional spot where of old the aborigines of the region met in council. It lies at the confluence of the Rangeley and Kennebec streams, and within a half mile of the great Moosehucmaguntic and Cupaug lakes, and so was a central and easy place of meeting. The rock itself poses no imposing quality, being simply a ledge level with the ground, and not so easily distinguishable from the soil with which it is incrustated. Geologists, however, have found not a little to interest them in its formation. When the writer first visited the spot, now nearly twenty years ago, the only touch of civilization that marked it was a narrow clearing a homely cabin, wherein a hermit by the name of Smith had made for himself a hunter's and trapper's home, and where the occasional visitor who strayed so far in quest of fish and game could find a little companionship and a few friendly and helpful professional ministrations. Now this same spot, directly across the stream from Indian Rock, presents to the view a well-finished clearing of ten or twenty acres, a productive farm, and a group of tasteful and tidy buildings, half a dozen or more in number. It is now Camp Kennebec, the thriving and popular headquarters of the Oquossoc Angling Association.

Some years ago a circle of New York and Philadelphia gentlemen, the central figure of which was Jay Cooke, became captivated with the charms of Rangeley and its outlying lakes, and by lease from township proprietors and accompanying legislation from the State, secured valuable and extensive pleasure rights and privileges throughout the region. The Oquossoc Angling Association was incorporated in 1870, and though Jay Cooke has retired from active participation in its concerns, its administration continues. The fine property at Camp Kennebec is of its creation, and the superintendent thereof, Mr. T. Richardson, is an agent in its pay. The buildings comprise two large lodging-houses, one for men and the other for women, the agent's house, a barn, and several subordinate structures, the boat-house, giving shelter to fifteen or twenty boats, also belonging to the association. George Sheppard Page, of Stanley, New Jersey, is now its president and R. C. Allerton, of New York City, its treasurer. The membership numbers between fifty and seventy-five, and meetings for the transaction of business are held at convenient intervals. The total value of investment at Camp Kennebec is not far from $20,000. Members, of course, have the first claim upon the privileges afforded at the camp, but after satisfying this demand the accommodations are open to the public on reasonable terms; and during the months of July and August a great deal of miscellaneous company is entertained. During the fishing season the Oquossoc are apt to "take up their claims" in good numbers.

The late at Camp Kennebec is surprisingly good, when its distance from the base of supplies is considered. A cup of such English breakfast tea as Mr. Richardson can set before his guests is a luxury not often met with in the woods or, indeed, any where away from the large cities. The interior of the main camp presents a novel and interesting scene. The long and lofty apartment is dormitory, sitting-room, and office all in one. Two rows of beds along the sides gives each sleeper an independent mattress and accompaniment; a spacious table in the center provides facilities for reading and writing; appropriate pictures adorn the rough walls, a cabinet organ furnishes the means of musical diversion, and a monstrous open fire-place in one corner is suggestive of the good cheer which follows the laborious sports of the day in the cool evenings of the early summer and autumn.

Indian Rock may be made the resting-place for many days of varied pleasure, or the starting-point for the continued trip on and through the great lake stretch to the southwestward. Of what is before the excursionist in that direction there is no hint whatever on the sunny slope of Camp Kennebec. The forest and the mountains shut in apparently on every side, and only the slow deep waters of the Lackawanna, which quench in themselves the noise and sparkle of the Kennebec and the Rangeley currents, point the way to the broad expanse a little way beyond. The steamer Oquossoc, mate to Mollychunkunkunk, lies waiting at the wharf, and at an early morning hour takes her departure. In five minutes' time she has glided down the few rods of river, and struck boldly out upon the great Moosehucmaguntic toward the Upper Dam. Frye's cottage, the nest of Hon. William P. Frye, of Lewiston, confronts the eye from its perch upon a rugged inlet in the narrows, opposite the mouth of the entering stream, the steamer leaving it on the left as it turns its prow to the southward. The view from this point is sublime and inspiring. To the right the narrow open into Cupaug Lake, which thrusts its arms close up under the mountains on the north, lapping their forest-fringed bases with its restless waves, and draining their slopes by one considerable stream, also called the Cupaug, navigable by the Indian Rock boats for several miles beyond its mouth. To the south spreads before the eye a much wider and grander view. As the steamer sweeps past Frye's Lodge and fairly enters Moosehucmaguntic, the magnificent proportions and surroundings of that water are all unfolded to the gaze. For something like a dozen miles the lake extends in the southerly direction, the nearly equal eastern arm being yet concealed from view by an approaching headland. Abruptly to the east rises Bald Mountain, the same which from Rangeley Lake was viewed upon its other side. Mountains there are to match upon the opposite (western) shore, while far to the south the whole horizon is filled with the bold and massive outline of the Bemis range—a chain of noble hills, which, at a greater remove from the overtowering White Mountains, would command a distinguished reputation. As the steamer pushes down the lake, by the aid of a good glass one may discern Allerton Lodge, upon its rocky foundation, under the very edge of Bald Mountain, at a point known as Bugle Cove. This is the haunt of Mr. R. C. Allerton, of New York, the treasurer of the Oquossoc Association, and is one of the finest and prettiest lodges on any of these shores. At the extremity of the eastern arm of the lake, occupying an eligible site at the foot of what is known as the Bemis Stream, is another camp, consisting of a number of cabins, controlled by Mr. George Sheppard Page, Mr. L. L. Crounse, and Mr. H. M. Hutchinson. These gentlemen are lessees of a large tract of surrounding territory, and have greatly interested themselves in the artificial propagation of fish. It is estimated that in 1875, 250,000 trout were spawned in the breeding ponds constructed by them on the Bemis Stream. The L-shaped configuration of Moosehucmaguntic makes practically to the eye two lakes out of the one, and the view from Bemis is quite independent from that presented to the observer at the Cupaug narrows. The mountains have shifted positions and stand in new relations. Islands, before an apparent part of the main-land, are discovered therefrom and established in their independence, and the outlines of the horizon are broken up into forms of fresh beauty.
